TIP OF THE MONTH: BEE STING SAFETY

If you are stung by a bee:

Call emergency medical services if you have a history of severe reactions to insect stings or if you experience any severe symptoms such as vomiting, nausea, diarrhea, dizziness, difficulty breathing, hives or swelling.

Determine if the stinger is still present (look for a small black dot at the sting site) and remove it immediately if it is visible in the wound. Many doctors recommend using a hard object, like a credit card, to swipe over the area and remove the stinger.

The honey bee venom sack, which remains in the skin of the victim, can take 2-3 minutes to release all of its venom, so prompt removal of the stinger can reduce the severity of the sting. Do not use tweezers to remove the stinger because the compression of the tweezers on the stinger will squeeze more venom into your body.

Apply ice or cold packs to the area to reduce the body's inflammatory response.

Clean the area with soap and water, then apply hydrocortisone cream to the site to decrease the severity of the reaction.

Taking an antihistamine such as Benadryl (diphenhydramine) in tablet form and/or nonprescription pain relievers such as ibuprofen or acetaminophen can also provide relief of symptoms.

Most people will have only a localized reaction to a bee sting. In the normal reaction to a bee sting, the skin is reddened and painful. Swelling and/or itching may also occur, but the pain usually disappears over a few hours.
